

Design consortium appointed

The development of Western Australia's new $1.1 billion Fiona Stanley Hospital has moved a step closer following the appointment of a world-class team of architects and planners.

The consortium charged with designing the new hospital comprises the Perth and Melbourne offices of Silver Thomas Hanley (STH), Hassell and Hames Sharley, with the ability to call on more than 180 locally-based architectural and planning personnel and more than 1500 worldwide.

The team has international-standard planning and design expertise – and a proven track record in the health sector and the WA building industry.

The architects and planners involved have worked on key Western Australian health infrastructure projects including the $536 million redevelopment of the QEII Medical Centre; the $100m transformation of the Rockingham Kwinana District Hospital; the $80m development of the Osborne Park Hospital; and the $100m-plus St John of God Healthcare redevelopment at Subiaco.

Members of the team have also have an impressive national and international portfolio including the Olympic Station at Homebush, Sydney; the Lyell McEwin Redevelopment in Adelaide; the Alibaba Campus in Shanghai, the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital in Sydney (pictured right) and New Zealand's Christchurch Women's Hospital.

"I'm very confident this team will help develop a hospital that not only meets the needs of our health system, but is an iconic asset for the State that represents global best practice," Health Minister Jim McGinty said.

Fiona Stanley Hospital goes 'live'

Up-to-date information about WA's newest tertiary hospital is now available at the click of a button following the launch of a dedicated Fiona Stanley Hospital website.

The site – which can be viewed at www.fionastanley.health.wa.gov.au – offers a wealth of information about the proposed health service and facilities, planning already undertaken, site information and frequently asked questions.

Fiona Stanley Hospital Executive Director Brad Sebbes said the website was an important part of ensuring that members of the general public, health sector and other key stakeholders were kept informed about the progress of the new hospital.

"Fiona Stanley Hospital will be the State's flagship health facility and we're keen to ensure that everyone has the opportunity to learn more about the new hospital and its ongoing development – not just the local community and health industry workers, but communities and organisations right across Western Australia. This website is a significant step towards achieving this," Mr Sebbes said.
